FURORE WIDENS OVER PROPOSAL OF SECY STIMSON

Senate's Opposition to Any Political Pact at London
Grows

EFFORTS INCREASED

Lengthy Messages Are Trans-

WASHINGTON, Mar. 29.—Senator Joseph R. Grundy will file nominating petitions to have his name placed on the primary ballot as a candidate to succeed himself in the Senate.

This was definitely announced yesterday, after an insistent demand was made upon him to remain as a candidate, by industrial and other interests throughout the State.

"When I accepted appointment in the United States Senate last December," said Mr. Grundy in his statement, "I stated unqualifiedly that I would be a candidate in the May primary for the balance of the unexpired term."

"I am a candidate, and shall conduct an energetic campaign for the nomination."

BOYS' WEEK COMMITTEE

Annual Event Will Be Held
Here Beginning May 4th and Ending May 10th

ADOPT GENERAL PLANS

The first meeting to arrange plans for the 1930 Boys' Week was held in the Elks' Home last night. A chairman and a secretary were chosen and the general details discussed. It was decided to conduct the various activities of the week in about the same manner as was the plan last year.

Invitations are to be extended to Edgely and Crofton to enter into the numerous events and the next meeting is to be held in the Moose Home, next Friday evening at 8.30 o'clock.

M. J. Hill was selected as chairman and Charles I. Bowen was named secretary.

The week will begin May 4th and continue until including May 10th.

AMERICAN SPORTS GROW IN POPULARITY AMONG RESIDENTS OF PANAMA CANAL ZONE

(This is the third of a series of articles on Panama, its oddities, life and people as seen by a special correspondent of the Courier and International News Service, who recently visited that country.)

By William Parker

COLON, Panama, Mar. 29.—The American sports fan who comes to the Isthmus of Panama will discover many sports to interest him, but will be disappointed in not seeing a few he expected.

A cock fight is harder to find than an orangutan on St. Patrick's day. The same goes for bull fights. Nobody seems to know what has become of these sports, if they were sports. "We just don't have them anymore," said a Panamanian with a shrug of his shoulders.

There is more varied gambling in the "States" than in Panama. Lottery is the big gambling game here, and almost everybody plays it, first prize being $20,000 in gold for a $10 ticket. Every known superstition is used in an effort to guess the winning number. A little bootlegging is done during the carnival season. The Panamanian roulette wheel is a thing of wonder and consternation. It has only twenty-four numbers, aside from the single and double 0. A straight-up bet pays 20 for one. Minimum bets are 20 cents.

Tourist travel has become so heavy through the canal that the Panamanian government recently listened to a proposal for an elaborate casino and hotel. A fast-talking New Yorker came down and got the National Assembly to pass a bill granting a gambling concession. The New Yorker was to post $50,000 as a guarantee on a specified date. He returned to New York, the day arrived and no money was put up. Word came down that his backers had walked. If anybody wants the concession it is still available.

There are two popular cabarets on the isthmus, both giving floor shows. At Panama it is Kelley's Ritz which looks like any American cabaret, and is just as hot, noisy and expensive. It used to be "Mamie's" Kelley's but "Mamie" has done very well of late years so she put on the ritz. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is advertised as a forthcoming attraction at Kelley's Ritz.

All of the American sports drop in to see "Jimmy" Dean, an international character who runs a saloon. "Jimmy" is white-haired, blue-eyed and always ready for a fight or a trolie. He says he has $30,000 in unpaid tabs in his safe, and expects to have a lot more before he dies. He admits he has made his pile. He came to the canal as a ship's fitter and intends to die here. He has a reputation of buying drink for any American party that comes in.

While alcoholic liquor of every description is available outside of the canal zone, Americans drink mostly beer, with a cocktail before dinner.

At Panama city, the Union and Miramar clubs, and Century Club, all private institutions are the meeting places for Americans. At Colon it is the Strangers' Club. All three are on meals, and women with escorts are admitted every evening.

Andalusia

Beginning Wednesday, April 2nd, an interesting story dealing with the founding, growth and development of Andalusia, will begin in the Courier. The story will continue in daily installments until completed.

Much of historical interest as well as present day news will be found in this article which has been prepared after careful research and painstaking effort on the part of the author.

If you do not already subscribe for the Courier do so at once. Notify William Jackson, carrier, or telephone Bristol 156. This is the only way to be sure of getting the issues containing this interesting article.

The story will deal with the churches, public school, early residents of the vicinity who played an active part in the affairs of the community. The officers of the organizations of the town which are now active are listed, and a portion of the account is given over to the main business interests of the village.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL OPENED AT QUAKERTOWN

Public Subscriptions Amounting to $170,000 Make the Structure Possible

NOW BEING INSPECTED

QUAKERTOWN, Mar. 29.—Quaker-town's new community hospital, made possible through subscriptions amounting to about $170,000 and the donation of a piece of ground, is now being inspected by the public, the large new institution having been opened for that purpose Thursday.

All day Thursday and Friday many visited the hospital, as well as today, and at a public meeting to take place in the high school auditorium tomorrow at two p. m., information will be given by C. William Freed, attorney, president, and Asher B. Blehn, treasurer. Others who will make address on this occasion are: Dr. Santee, chief surgeon; Dr. Erdman, chief of staff; and J. H. Griesemer, superintendent.

The Quakertown Community Hospital may properly be called the outgrowth of what was formerly the "Gehman Hospital."

A number of public spirited citizens acting in co-operation with Miss Gehman held preliminary meetings in the fall of 1925 with a view of either enlarging and increasing the facilities of her hospital or erecting a new one.

Upon communication with the State Health authorities at Harrisburg it was ascertained that the entire physical structure of the Gehman hospital did not meet with its requirements, hence it was not possible to so enlarge the facilities of the hospital and the erection of a new one was finally decided upon.

A permanent organization was effected on February 3rd, 1926, and a charter was subsequently secured. The first officers were: Harold G. Kittelman, Esq., president; Rev. Edwin O. Marks, vice-president; Joseph Cavanaugh, secretary; Asher B. Blehn, treasurer.

The purposes of this civic project met with prompt popular approval. A desirable site, whereon the hospital is now erected, was donated by Miss Sallie Thomas, in memory of her deceased brother, Ellwood Thomas.

Substantial subscriptions were at once made by public spirited citizens. That the movement so instituted was a popular one, is attested by the fact that the results of the campaign for subscriptions amounted to approximately $170,000.

Ground was broken in August, 1926, with appropriate ceremonies.

The cornerstone of the present building was laid on November 11, 1928, with appropriate exercises in connection therewith. This memorable event, attended by several thousand people stimulated the enthusiasm with which the friends and subscribers of the institution had to that time pursued the project.

Although the work has not been without its vicissitudes, the officers and Board of Directors of the association have been greatly encouraged and assisted in this work by the spontaneous and magnanimous aid and assistance of a generous public, together with the enthusiastic and splendid assistance of a Ladies' Auxiliary and the result is an institution which reflects not only the spirit of the community but a monument dedicated to the present and future generations.

The hospital is a three and one-half story fireproof building, containing de-luxe private rooms, eight regular private rooms, four semi-private rooms and four wards; children, male, female, maternity, and a nursery, X-Ray department, laboratory, operating room, maternity department, laundry and kitchen.

The sanitary, heating, electric and dietary systems are of the very latest and best.

The X-Ray department is equipped with the very latest and best of equipment.

After dinner there will be an address given by the Rev. Mother Superior which will be followed by a recreation period.

The retreat will close with benediction in the chapel.

The guests will leave Bristol on the 7.15 train tomorrow morning. Among those who will attend are:

Misses Mary and Ellie McFadden, Elizabeth Cunningham, Marie Gaffney, Catherine Dugan, Catherine Strong, Anna Amole, Mary Dougherty, Catherine Waters, Mary McVaine, Mrs. Catherine Murphy, Miss Mary McGee, Anna Gallagher, Mrs. John Lawler, Miss Adeline Gallagher, Mary Brady, Mary Sackville, Mary Roarty and Anna Boyle.

BUCKS STUDENTS COMPETING IN MEET

Scholastic Contests Are Being Held Today At
Quakertown

17 SCHOOLS TAKE PART

Seventeen schools, the largest number ever entered, are competing today in the largest scholastic meet ever held in Bucks County. The event is being held at Quakertown and over 500 pupils of the public schools in Bucks County enrolled for the contest.

This is the tenth annual meet and the first time the scholastic and athletic meet have been held on separate days and at separate schools. The decision to separate was practically unanimous among the schools and was made to improve the scholastic and athletic meets by giving more time to each. In addition to having the meets in different sections of the county much more enthusiasm has been aroused.

Five new events were added to the scholastic meet. These are: Typing and piano, violin, harmonica and bugle playing.

Quakertown is making preparations to take care of this large meet and cafeteria facilities were available to the contestants for the first time this year. A faculty luncheon was also served.

Schools entering the meet this year which were not in the meet last year are: Quakertown, Perkasie-Sellersville, Bristol, Warminster, Lower Southampton and Springfield.

The athletic meet will be held at Bristol on May 17th. In all events in the scholastic and athletic meets, medals will be given to the three best. Silver cups will be given to all schools winning first place in their class, and plaques will go to the schools placing second.

Three classification of the schools entering the meet this year is: Class A, High Schools—Bristol, Morrisville, Quakertown and Perkasie-Sellersville.

Class B, High Schools—Newtown, New Hope and Langhorne.

Class C, Junior High Schools—Southampton, Edgewood, Yardley, Springfield and Richboro.

Class C, Grades—Morrisville, Bristol, Quakertown, Sellersville-Perkasie, Bristol Township and Langhorne.

Class D, Grades—Newtown, New Hope, Warminster, South Langhorne, Hulterville and Lower Southampton.

Officers of the meet are: President, Charles Boehm, of Morrisville; vice president, George Zarr, of Bristol Township, and secretary-treasurer, William Thomas, of Langhorne.

Joseph Neidig, supervising principal of Quakertown, is chairman of the general committee in charge of the scholastic meet and is also chairman of the committee to study a reclassification of schools for 1930-31.

Fire Damages House To Extent of $1100 Here Today

Fire at 149 this morning damaged the property and contents at 334 Lincoln avenue to the extent of about $1100.

Matches lying loose in a drawer in the kitchen were ignited by mice and the flames spread up between the partitions of the house.

Consolidated firemen were called and soon had the blaze under control. Three alarms were struck at about the same time. Word was telephoned to fire headquarters, a police officer pulled the alarm and a small boy attempted to send in the call.

Fire Chief McGee today urged all residents here to keep matches in tin boxes and away from mice or other means of igniting them. Carelessness with matches was the direct cause of the fire this morning.

TRAINMEN HURT IN P. R. R. WRECK AT FRANKFORD

Engine Apparently Jumped Tracks at Intersection of Cross-Over Line

2 MAY DIE AS RESULT

Engineer and Fireman Are Crushed, Burned and Scalded

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 29.—(INS)—Two trainmen were hurt, probably fatally and two other men were reported injured early today when a fast New York-Wilmington freight train of the Pennsylvania Railroad was wrecked at the Frankford Junction of the lines here. The engine overturned and 14 freight cars with their contents were strewn over the entire five tracks of the system, tying up all traffic.

High voltage electric power lines with their supporting towers were torn down, adding to the damage.

The known injured: Engineer John P. Hagan, 35, of 324 N. Preston street, Philadelphia, and Arthur Robinson, 22-year-old Jersey City fireman. Both were crushed, burned and scalded so badly they may die. They were pulled from a 45-foot deep pit along Tacony Creek which flows beside the tracks at this point and taken to Frankford Hospital by fellow trainmen.

The wrecked cars were loaded with heavy pipe and dynamo. Traffic was re-routed to New York over the Atlantic City Division as officials said it would be several hours before the debris could be cleared.

The train was composed of 70 cars pulled by one of the huge locomotives of the system. It was traveling at the rate of 40 miles per hour when the wreck occurred. The engine apparently jumped the tracks at the intersection of a cross-over line.

According to railroad officials, the freight train, known as "D-3" a regular scheduled train, was proceeding from New York to Wilmington, on time, on No. 4 track at 11.48 p. m. It was to switch over to the No. 3 track, southbound, when some defect in the train, which has not yet been determined, overturned the locomotive on its right side, throwing the ten cars adjoining across the tracks.

At this point, within a few hundred feet of the "Ford" tower of the division, the tracks are raised thirty feet over the street level beside the banks of the creek, which the city is converting into a sewer.

The locomotive buried its pilot in the ballast of the roadbed as it toppled over and steam pipes cracked, pouring live steam into the cab, where Hagan and Robinson were sitting. The accident occurred so quickly neither was able to jump, but when the locomotive struck on its side, both were hurled into the creek. Robinson was thrown completely over the creek, ten feet wide, but Hagan dropped in water up to his shoulders. He was unable to crawl out, while Robinson was scalded so badly he was unable to help his comrade.

Sold Stock for $4 Share
When It Was Worth 20c

NEW YORK, Mar. 29.—Anderson T. Herd, a real estate dealer, of New Hope, Pa., was held in $7,500 bail yesterday in Yorkville Court on a charge of larceny in connection with the sale of 1,000 shares of stock at $4 a share to Rob Roy S. Converse, architect of New York, when the stock was alleged to have been listed on the New York Curb at 20 cents asked and one cent bid.

Mr. Converse testified that he gave a check for $4,000 in payment for the stock to Herd at the Hotel Biltmore, August 16. He said two days previously Herd had told him the stock was Lorrain Silver Syndicate, which had consolidated with General Ore and Smelting Company.

Eugene E. Cerf, broker, testified that he owned Lorrain stock but that he had never heard of any consolidation with General Ore.

Magistrate Gottlieb said he could hear no further testimony at that time and adjourned the case. Herd was held for grand jury.

NICE AND PRETTY WAR

Memories of the destruction of the Louvain library and of the Cathedral of Rheims inspires a New York advocate of universal and perpetual peace to suggest that a special flag be adopted to mark art treasures for protection against destruction in time of war.

The sentiment and purpose behind his plan is commendable. It reflects a universal wish that armies would always respect the beautiful and the rare in buildings, books, paintings and sculpture. But few can show such naive optimism as this fellow.

How many hospitals, ambulances and field hospitals were spared during the World War because they displayed the sign of the Red Cross—a symbol the civilized world had sworn to respect and protect? Were not the towering spires of Rheims and the Louvain "flags" beseeching the invading armies to spare them and their irreplaceable contents?

The best of intentions and most solemn of vows are soon forgotten in the heat of battle and the bitterness and hatred of war. The World War demonstrated how international law and treaties can be scrapped like so much waste paper.

When nations are at war victory is the only consideration. If it takes submarine warfare, poison gas, slaughter of non-combatants, the army with its back to the wall does not stop to talk of scruples and pacts and the humanities.

PRESIDENTIAL INITIATIVE

Convinced that, if there is ever to be a reorganization of government machinery at Washington in the interests of economy and efficiency, the executive branch must take the initiative, President Hoover asks that authority over the problem be delegated to the executive department with the reservation by congress of the power to revise or veto the president's action.

This amounts to government by administrative action subject to legislative veto, which is a distinctly new relationship between these two branches of government. It reverses the ordinary time-honored method of legislation by which the legislature acts and the president vetoes.

It is almost a revolution in method, but one which the fast-changing conditions of modern life appear to demand. At least the old method has never permitted any extensive overhauling of the business organization of the federal government.

Asking congress to abolish departments, bureaus and commissions and to drive hundreds of jobholders away from the public trough is asking congressmen to desert their constituents and to place the public interest before that of politics and politicians. But the executive branch might well accomplish these things and gain in popularity and power thereby. It is much easier for congress to confirm than to take the initiative.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

General Crack, soldier of fortune, has routed the enemy and is ready to make King Leopold emperor. The latter is smarting because he had to yield up Princess Eleanora, whom he wished to wed, to General Crack, as his price for supporting him in the war. Leopold secretly leaves Brussels and rides incognito to Crack's estate and meets Eleanora in her chamber at midnight. At dawn, Gabor, Crack's enemy, enters through the window. To ensure his secrecy, Eleanora gives him two large diamonds, given her by General Crack. Gabor then informs Crack, and gloats over the evil tidings.

Hensdorff closed his hands over his eyes, and felt his trembling fingers cold upon his hot lids. He heard a sigh from Christian, and then Christian's voice.
"To whom did Colonel Pons refer when he said 'Blast him to all eternity'?"
Gabor licked his lips over the exquisite flavor of his triumph.
"Leopold," he answered.
At that name, Hensdorff felt as if choking ashes filled the warm room. Gabor's voice came deliberately.
"You Monseigneur, may slay me for what I am about to say, and I

Christian moved and raised his eyes: his level glance stared down the fury of the man in front of him. He said in a voice not by one inflexion out of control:
"I marked you deeper than I thought, Gabor; I see the mark of my ring quite plainly across your lip!"

At this, most unexpected, the spy winced back, his malice fluttering on his ashy lips. He had expected death, not this; some fury, tremendous and ungovernable; but never this.

"Back to your gutter, dog!" added Christian. "Back to your filth and garbage . . . and do not dare to come within my sight again. . . ."

The keen edge of Gabor's triumph was blunted. How many times he had rehearsed this moment; but never like this. His keen eye, vivid with malice, searched in vain the cold face before him for any sign of pain.

"You brave it out, Monseigneur!" he snarled. "But it is done, and cannot be undone; and I was the first to tell you."

He took a stealthy step towards the door.

"Have me touched," he added, in tones shrill with venom, "and I will make her name as stale as that of any commoner of the camp!"

Christian continued to stare him down, undimmedly, without a quiver of his lids or of his lips.

"Go!" muttered Hensdorff, hoarsely: "go! Have you not seen, you blackguard, that you can do nothing more here?"

Gabor had other and even deeper injuries burning upon his lips; but before that unflinching stare, that mute arrogance of Christian, he could not utter them. Even the vigour of his hate was taken away by the vigour of the other man's pride. But there was time, so he controlled his yet unslaked malice; there was time—other places, other opportunities; much that he might yet do to wound and dismay.

Without a salute to either of the men, and with as much insolence as he could command, he left them.

Christian sat down and looked slowly at Hensdorff, who remained huddled and motionless in his low seat.

Christian said:
"There's brandy in that cupboard; will you, Count, give me some?" And, as Hensdorff rose in silence, he added: "Is this true?"

Hensdorff, without answering, found the brandy, poured it out and brought the glass to the table.

Christian repeated:
"Is it true?"

Hensdorff replied:
"Drink that, for God's sake!"

Then added: "Yes."

"You were there?" asked Christian.

Hensdorff replied:
"I was at Rosenberg; I waited for him. I was there when he came home. There is nothing to be said in the way of extenuation, of excuse."

"She—she . . ." asked Christian, and for the first time his voice faltered. "Was it found out?" he added.

"They were such fools!" replied Hensdorff, with bitter contempt. "Yes, it was found out. And that old woman, the Duchess of Schonbuechel, told her what she was . . . she spared her nothing."

"And Pons shot himself," said Christian. "She was not worth it—eh, Hensdorff?"

"Pons was cut to the heart that he had been outwitted, and his trust betrayed; but it was not his fault; it was an act of the most foul treachery!"

Christian raised the glass of brandy, but set it down again. "Oh, Hensdorff," he murmured, "I feel sick—a sudden and utter sickness. Never in my life before such weakness. . . . O God, what shall I do if I should not be able to command myself?"

"I did what I could," answered the minister, in the extreme of bitter distress: "I hastened after him, for I guessed; I tried to save her for you, but I was too late."

"In my room—my house—my bed!" breathed Christian, as if he had not heard these words. "Why, I am ill! It is as if the sudden blow had struck all my senses! And that dog to see her, as he said he saw her!"

"Have him strangled," said Hensdorff, "and thrown into a ditch. . . ."

"Where is she now?" asked Christian, heedless of this.

"At Ottenheim," replied Hensdorff.

"What title has she now?" asked Christian, with a terrible smile. "What shall I call her? His harlot and my wife?"

Hensdorff said, heavily:
"Everything is in your hands; without you he has no crown, no army, no chance."

"You remind me of that?"
"You must when you come to think—and now you cannot think—discover it for yourself," replied Hensdorff with dignity. "I do not disguise from you, Monseigneur, that you could betray him as he has betrayed you."

(To be continued)

He listened to the terrible story!

can be slain, having said it. My life is in your power, but not my silence.

"I have been to Ottenheim," he smiled, "where I so long served you, Monseigneur; services that you kindly repaid with a cut across my face. Perhaps you may recall: your memory is good, I think, even for trivialities. I have been to Ottenheim, and I have seen the Princess Eleanora."

The old, trembling voice of Hensdorff cut across his speech.

"You shall not say what you intend to say! Leave it! Leave it!"

But Gabor replied, undauntedly: "I will say every word that I intend to say. Why should I leave anything?"

And Christian, in an expressionless tone, said:
"Leave nothing."

"I have been sentinel," smiled Gabor, "outside the Princess Eleanora's window, all through one winter night; a dog to watch outside her window, Prince Christian. That window was unlatched: they were so inexperienced!"

"They," whispered Christian.

And Gabor replied immediately, as if there was a dart in his voice—so keen and vivid were his words:
"She, Eleanora—and Leopold; together in that room all night. When I broke in upon them, thinking the dawn made such dallying indiscreet, I saw her, Prince Christian, half naked at her dressing table; and he behind her, asleep in her bed . . . your bed, Monseigneur, that you so brightly decked for her."

Christian said, on a sob:
"You blackguard! I will have you flogged to death!"

"Ay, no doubt!" replied Gabor, with unquenchable fury and unflickering hate; "and take these, Monseigneur, as my parting gift—a second time let them be a parting gift."

He brought his hand swiftly from his breast, and held out to Christian the two green diamonds that he had given to Eleanora on his wedding night.

"She gave me these—her bribe for silence. They were lying unregarded, with other trinkets, on her toilet table; her bribe for silence, I say! But she did not offer high enough. No pearls or diamonds, nor gold—ay, nor any gems—could have bought this moment from me, Prince Christian."

Hensdorff cried, with trembling hoarseness:
"For God's sake, have done! Have done! I implore Your Highness to have this wretch dragged out."

"Ay!" Gabor caught it up quickly: "To shout out my news before the camp?"

For the Comfort and Convenience of the Public

Street railway companies in Pennsylvania operate because "public convenience and necessity" require the service which they render.

The development of automotive transportation has drained the treasuries of the street railways, but it has not lessened the need for them. There are still many thousands of people who find the trolleys the cheapest and safest means of transportation.

No matter what the weather may be, the trolley service we render is available. It may be too stormy to drive your automobile, but the trolley runs just the same. There may be only a few passengers to be hauled in the "lean" hours, but the trolley is there to haul them.

There is no public service more deserving of the public's support and good will than the trolley service. It exists for the comfort and convenience of the people.

TULLYTOWN A. C. LOSES TO BRISTOL "RED" FIVE

(By T. M. Juno)

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 29.—In a keenly fought contest played in Montu's Hall, last night, the Bristol "Reds" scored a triumph over the Tullytown A. C., 39 to 28.

The game was played as a benefit game for Earl Nickerson, star forward of the Tullytown team who broke his arm during a contest a week ago. All indications prove that the committee realized quite a sum on the affair.

From the start until the finish, the "Reds" had the advantage over the home team. During the last few minutes, "Russ" Carman went on a scoring spree and netted five field goals in quick succession which brought the Tullytown boys to within five points of the Bristol five.

But then the "Irishers" got to work and field goal after field goal sank into the net to leave the Tullytowners in the dust.

"Russ" Carman and "Eddie" Roe shared the high scoring honors. The entire "Reds" team showed good form in shooting and made some very difficult shots.

The passing of the residential five was remarkable but too many shots were missed.

"Marty" Fallon twice was the principal of unique shots when he tapped the ball in on throw-ups near the basket.

Line-up:

In the preliminary game the Imperials, of Trenton, defeated Morrisville A. C., 37-10.

Prominent Persons Will Attend Banquet Here Tonight

Several prominent persons are expected to be present at the banquet, which the congregation of the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour will give this evening in honor of the pastor, Rev. Andrew George Solla, on the occasion of his promotion to the grade of captain in the Chaplain Reserve Corps of the United States Army.

Among the group are: Col. Lewis S. Sorley, chief of the staff of the 79th Division; Col. H. Harrison Smith, commander of the 316th Regiment Infantry Reserve; Dr. J. Fred Wagner; Miss Sallie H. Greene, of Philadelphia, and others.

Special music will be furnished by Nicholas Romagnano. Miss Jennie Tisone and Miss Fannie Rubertone will also render special music at the piano. A radio will be installed for the occasion by Alfred Tomesani.

The menu will be prepared in the Italian style and consists of the following: Antipasto alla Masegna, spaghetti in the Neapolitan style, ragu with peas, roast chicken with potatoes and salad, coffee, ice cream and cake.

BRISTOL M. E. PLAYERS DEFEAT BENSALEM

Bristol M. E. basketball team of the Epworth Church League added another victory to its string by defeating Bensalem M. E. on the latter's floor 69 to 7. Bristol took the lead at the start and at half-time the score stood 32 to 5.

"Sid" Trott was 5th scorer with 19 points, closely followed by David with 17 and Jack Nichols with 16. The superior passing of the locals completely bewildered the Bensalem team.

RESOLUTION

The Board of Directors of The Bristol Trust Company desire to place on record their appreciation of the services of the late lamented fellow director, and their deep sense of his loss. By the death of Henry W. Comfort this Company is deprived of the services and active interest of one who has been a most faithful member of the Directorate.

To the matters that fell to his duties in the management of the Company's affairs, he gave that careful and earnest attention that was so characteristic of him. His sterling qualities which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, causes his death to be felt by the members of this Board as a personal bereavement, and they sympathize deeply with his family and with the community at large to whom they offer their tenderest condolence and earnestly invoke for them the support of higher consolation.

Resolved that a copy of this minute be sent to the family and that it be published in the Bristol Courier and spread upon the minutes of this Company.

SUBURBAN TEAMS WANT TO JOIN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Preparations for another season of the Bristol Twilight League were made last night at a meeting of the representatives of the ball teams in the office of D. Landreth Seed Company.

President Dave Landreth announced that the Bristol Colored A. C. had withdrawn from the league and that many ball clubs from the vicinity of Bristol had expressed their desire to join the league.

The league this year may be composed of St. Ann's, Federals, Emille, A. O. H., Independents, Cornwells, Croydon and Tullytown. The first five teams named are the left overs from last year while the remaining three are newcomers.

No definite plans were made, however, but Secretary Francis G. Ellis will draw up a tentative schedule and present it at the meeting next Friday night. If the plans are satisfactory the opening game of the league will be played on May 5th.

Teams and their representatives at last night's meeting were:

Federals—John Mulholland and Elmer White.
Emille—Warren Bruce.
St. Ann's—Nick Gilardi and William Missera.

A. O. H.—Charles McClafferty.
Independents—Joseph Rubino.
Croydon—William Moran and Walter Force.

At the meeting next Friday night, officers will be elected and the rules and regulations committee appointed.

TAX NOTICE

E. W. Martindell, Hulmeville Tax Collector, has received from the American Surety Company a letter calling attention to an Act of Legislature approved on the 9th day of May, 1929, by the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, making it compulsory for a tax collector to file with the County Commissioners not later than the first Monday of May, 1930, a list of unpaid taxes for the year 1929. An additional penalty is to be added to such penalties as now prescribed by Law.

Hulmeville, Pennsylvania, March 25, 1930.

every detail. A Scalytic light donated by the Quakertown Water Company; a Balfour operating table, Sorensen suction outfit, McKesson gas machine and a complete set of chrome plated instruments are the donations of the A. F. Muehlhauser family.

The laboratory is on the same basis as the X-Ray department. The equipment in this department is also complete and of the very best. This also was made possible by the generous gift of Mrs. (Dr.) O. H. Fretz and son, LaMar.

The maternity department is a complete unit, consisting of a delivery room fully equipped, a nursery of twelve bassinets and a very cheerful maternity ward with plenty of bed space and all the conveniences of private rooms.

The nursing staff consists of six registered nurses and eight student nurses. Graduate nurses will be added if found necessary. It will be the policy of the institution to always have an adequate nursing staff under all conditions.

The physician's staff includes every doctor in Quakertown.

A day and night ambulance service will be maintained.

Events Leading Up to The Crucifixion Are Forming Bases of Lenten Sermons

Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, rector of Christ Church, Edgington, will be the features.

Croydon M. E. Church
Wilkinson Memorial M. E. Church, State Road and Church street, Croydon, Rev. George C. Shoe, pastor; Morning service at 10.45, subject, "Precious Jewels"; 2.30 p. m., Sunday School; seven p. m., Epworth League; 7.45, sermon upon the subject, "The Lost Christ."

Prayer service on Thursday will be at eight.

Oakhurst Chapel
Michael J. Hickey, the prisoner's friend, founder and secretary of the League of Another Chance Mission, 5th avenue, New York City, will speak at Oakhurst Chapel, Durham Road, South Langhorne, Sunday at 10.30 a. m., 3.30 and 7.45 p. m.

Mr. Hickey was a typical New York character, developing into one of the slickest pickpockets in the game. He spent 19 years serving time in jails and prisons. After his confinement his life was changed by a remarkable religious experience. Since then he has worked his way into respect and esteem of police officials and judges; was for four years head of the Bowery Mission. He founded the League of Another Chance Mission, and has a wonderful experience. Mr. Hickey will speak at three services on Sunday.

A special musical program by Oakhurst Chapel orchestra and boys' choir will be features.

THE WEAKNESS OF THE WETS

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:
Sir—If prohibition doesn't work, why are the Wets so disturbed about it? If prohibition is a dismal failure, why don't the Wets rejoice? Is not that what they want?

Prohibition has done wonders in the ten years of its reign. It has made millions of happy homes and more millions of happy, decent, sober men and women. Instead of being a curse, prohibition is a supreme blessing. By one mighty stroke it abolished 187,000 saloons.

The Wet cause is terribly weak. That was demonstrated by the sophomoric essay read by Jim Beck in the House of Representatives. Such poor, weak, lame arguments by a Wet certainly help the cause of prohibition.
